

Fredric Navarre

Houston, TX

Fredric Navarre is a results-driven leader with a proven track record of strategic leadership and stakeholder engagement. He has successfully spearheaded large-scale initiatives, cultivated pivotal partnerships, and driven transformative workforce and business development programs. Bringing a dynamic blend of public and private sector leadership, he consistently delivers impactful solutions that bridge business, community, and industry priorities.

At the U.S. Department of Energy in Washington, D.C., Fredric plays a pivotal role in shaping national priorities for business and workforce development. He leads initiatives that influence funding decisions, strengthens industry partnerships, and advance innovative energy infrastructure projects. His work helps accelerate the deployment of emerging technologies, expand career pathways in the energy sector, and deliver measurable results that strengthen both communities and the nation's energy future.

In the private sector, Fredric served as Vice President of Marketing and Communications for an energy company, where he championed sustainability, innovation, and market growth. Earlier in his career, he served as Deputy Director of External Relations and Communications for the Houston Mayor's Office of Complete Communities, collaborating with diverse stakeholders to address disparities and drive equitable urban development. A former educator and administrator in both K-12 and higher education, he has a strong foundation in leadership, program management, and stakeholder engagement.

Beyond his professional career, Fredric has also contributed to civic life through public service and political engagement. He has worked on several political campaigns, bringing his expertise in communications and coalition building to support candidates and community driven initiatives. He also served as a school board member, where he applied his leadership skills to strengthen educational outcomes, support teachers, and expand opportunities for students.

Fredric holds a Bachelor of Science in Business from Southern University A&M, an MBA in Energy Finance from Texas Southern University, a Master's in Educational Leadership and Policy Studies from The University of Texas at Arlington, and an Executive Finance Certification from Georgetown University.

Deeply committed to service, Fredric has held a range of nonprofit leadership roles. He served as Treasurer for Asians Against Domestic Abuse, Vice President of the Texas Southern University Alumni Association JHJ Houston Chapter, Board Chairman of Achievement Through Leadership Foundation, and a Chapter Polemarch for his fraternity. He currently serves on the boards of the Texas Southern University Jesse H. Jones School of Business Advisory Council, the Southern University A&M Business MBA Program, and the Delta Research and Educational Foundation. He is also a life member of Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity, Inc. In 2023, he was honored as one of the Houston Business Journal's 40 Under 40 honorees.

Personal mission statement: Lead with purpose, serve with impact.
